Diversity

The Missouri Developmental Disabilities Council's Position:
Missouri public and private agencies and organizations should value and reflect the rich and diverse demographics of the state and implement policies and practices that are inclusive of disability, race, ethnicity, culture, age, religion, gender, gender identity and expression, sexual orientation, and socio-economic status. Missouri should develop and implement laws, policies, and practices that ensure equal rights to all including full and equal access to goods and services.

The Missouri Developmental Disabilities Council’s Reasons:
Diversity is important because it helps us learn from one another, empowering us to build upon our strengths to address common challenges and create a more effective, inclusive society.¹ Research shows that diversity is associated with improved human development and well-being² and that people from different cultures possess skills and perspectives that can maximize the abilities of others including theoretical and practical knowledge and access to professional and social networks.³ In addition, organizations that value and practice diversity are more productive,⁴ innovative,⁵ and better at problem-solving.⁶ However, public and private organizations too often fail to reflect the characteristics and values of the communities they serve or society at large.⁷ For example, studies have found that white men held 73% of board seats in Fortune 500 companies⁸ and that 82% of nonprofit board members are white.⁹ Similarly, although government appointments have grown more diverse in recent years, they do not approach the diversity found in the general population.¹⁰ In the words of former SEC Commissioner Luis A. Aguilar, “It is past time to see the diversity of our nation reflected in corporate boardrooms, in the financial industry, and in the government.”¹¹

The Missouri Developmental Disabilities Council’s Recommendations:
- As a state and society, we must value diversity of culture, experience, language, and ideas and acknowledge that diverse public and private businesses and organizations are more productive and effective.
- Missouri should ensure that a diverse array of culturally and linguistically competent services and supports are available to people with intellectual and developmental disabilities throughout the state.
- Missouri should develop and implement laws and policies that ensure equal rights, treatment, and opportunities to all regardless of disability, race, ethnicity, culture, age, religion, gender, gender identity and expression, sexual orientation or socio-economic status.
- Missouri state government should take the lead and demonstrate the value of diversity by ensuring that appointments to state and local government positions, boards and advisory panels reflect the diverse demographics and values of the communities they serve and of society at large.
- Missouri should conduct outreach to people of diverse cultures, experiences, languages, and ideas in a culturally and linguistically competent manner with the aim of increasing their use of available supports and services and their participation in public boards, agencies, and advisory panels.
- Missouri should require that businesses and organizations contracting or doing business with the state value, encourage, and empower diversity and have policies and practices inclusive of disability, race, ethnicity, culture, age, religion, gender identity and expression, sexual orientation, and socio-economic status.
- Missouri should require that businesses and organizations contracting or doing business with the state have products and services that are accessible to people of culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds.
- Grants funded by Missouri public agencies should have cultural diversity and competency goals and include measurable outcomes reflecting outreach to people of diverse cultures and experiences.
